

Parkinson's Disease stole words right out of my mouth. But Amplify Speech Therapy returned my voice to me.

I worked with speech pathologist Cecelia Pizano weekly for about two months. I enlisted her help after several months of living with a soft, raspy voice.

She used the "Speak Out!" program to guide my therapy.

And she integrated her years of expertise working in the speech therapy field to address particular voice issues I had.

In the beginning, Cecelia filmed a video of me reading. After many weeks of speech therapy, she filmed me again.

I went from mumbling and being hard to hear to speaking more loudly and more clearly.

The difference amazed me. How fun the whole process was also amazed me. I appreciated Cecelia's sense of humor along with her professionalism.

I still must keep up with my exercises and have more goals to meet, but I feel like I'm way beyond the starting gate.
